Meeting the donor

our impression

Garston is charming, inquisitive, and profound with his words. He has beautiful hazel eyes and a broad smile. We enjoy having conversations with him, as he has a calming personality, yet is still very personable and social. Garston works as a mechanic in the U.S. Navy and has always been proficient in math. He is bilingual, as he is fluent in German and one day hopes to travel to Germany to be able to interact with others who speak the language. In his free time, Garston enjoys playing the ukulele, singing, and writing, which did not come as a surprise to us; Garston is a hardworking person, with a creative soul and we are very thankful to have him in our program!

My brother and I took a ferry to Victoria, Canada four years ago to busk in the streets for the day. It was surreal and I felt a sense of culture shock, a jarring of my American perspective on what exists outside of where I live day-to-day.

Describe a few of your strong sides:

I am a mediator, I observe the world around me through both a logical and emotional frame of reference which I feel guides me towards what is true and right. I am not afraid to be wrong just as much as I am not afraid to be right. I can be counted on and I keep promises.

Describe a few of your weak sides:

Describe a few of your weak sides:

I ruminate on the past. I can let my own pessimism prevent me from moving on for the sake of closure. I can be impulsive. Even when I see someone is manipulating me or on the path to hurt me I let them if I care enough about them.

Donor essay

Why do you want to be a donor?

I'm not morally opposed to the practice, and I don't think any couple should be robbed of the opportunity to have a family so I am happy to contribute

Describe your relationship with your family. How has your family shaped your values and who you are today?

My mothers side is distant, but on my fathers side we stay in contact and talk everyother day. We live far apart but we stay close because that's the way we were brought up. My grandmother would say "family is all you got" and I believe that. Growing up we would spend weeks together in the summers and those memories helped establish in my mind the value of having them to support you, you to support them.

What makes you unique?

My mind and emotional temperament. I have an understanding with myself which allows me to move through life unapologetically

What are you most proud of and why?

Pushing myself through the Navy Nuclear Power Propulsion Program. It's the hardest academic program the military has to offer, being a college accredited program designed by MIT I am proud to say I graduated from the program. Its helped to establish a confidence in myself that with enough effort I can accomplish anything I set my mind to
