Handwritten message

There's a rather fascinating thought experiment that really struck me. It goes like this. "If a vastly more advanced alien civilization were to land on Earth and you were the chosen person to talk to them, and you only had one question to ask, what would that question be?"

Formulating such a question puts all your knowledge into perspective and forces you to distill and refine it to something truly sacred and important that can extend beyond just satisfying personal needs. But surprisingly, most of us never actually stop to think what is that one thing you consider the backbone of your identity at any given moment? Thus, the true significance of this thought experiment is to have you halt for a moment and perform quick systems check to see if your direction needs adjusting ever so slightly. To put it simply, you need to maintain a state of fulfillment. For the pleasure comes not from attaining the goal ~~but~~ as much as it comes from the process of trying to reach it.

On this premise, my message to you is never run out of goals to achieve. Before you reach one goal, start mentally investing in the next one to avoid the depressing void of uncertainty. Remember, the more things you learn and invest to, the slimmer the chance of falling into depression or losing sense of identity when any of those things disappears.

Oh, and my question to the aliens would be:
"What is it that I need to know?"

Meeting the donor

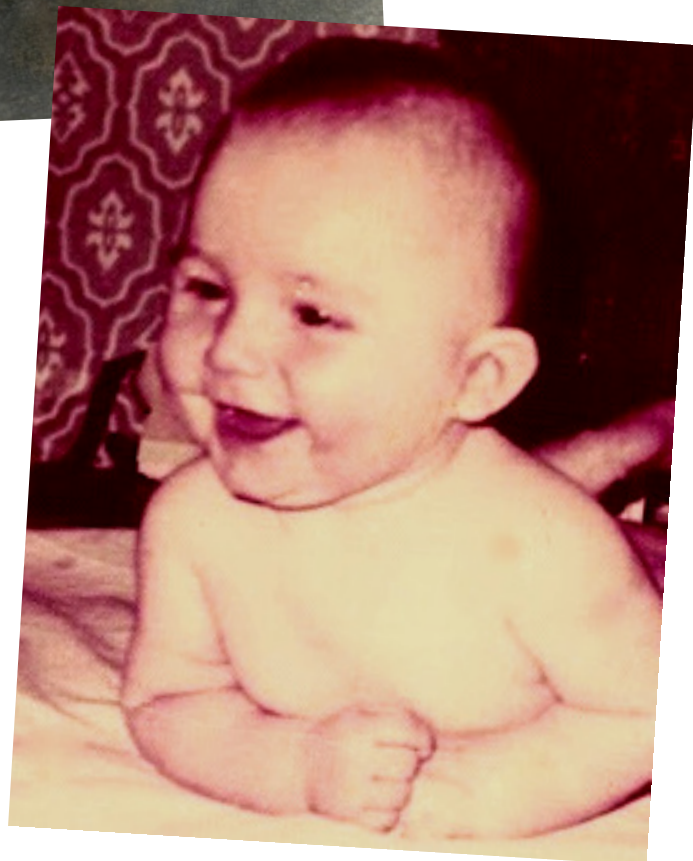

our impression

Ilya is energetic, intelligent, inquisitive, and very fun to converse with. We always enjoy hearing about his most recent adventures including skydiving! Ilya is 6 feet tall, with brown hair and complimenting brown eyes. He is very educated with two completed degrees, one in Linguistics and the other in Computer Science. Additionally, he is multilingual and is fluent in three languages including German, Spanish, and English.

Ilya more than anything loves athletics and sports! He enjoys outdoor activities including snowboarding, biking, and hiking. Along with sporting activities, he also enjoys traveling and has been to several countries including Russia, Greece, Vietnam, and the Netherlands, though he would like to travel to Brazil and Japan in the future. Ilya has a daughter of his own and would like to be a donor to help other families achieve the same goal of having children of their own. We recommend Ilya for any family!

Climbing, skiing, snowboarding, biking, swimming, calisthenics, ping pong

Which sports did you play as a child?

soccer, volleyball, ping pong

Which sports do you enjoy watching?

Track and field athletics, gymnastics, climbing

Do you play any musical instruments?

No

What is your most memorable childhood experience?

Our town had an Air Force military base where my mom was serving. I was 7. One time she pulled some strings to give me a ride in one of the fighter helicopters KA-27 during the exercise that was shooting rockets at a dummy targets at sea. It was maneuvering like crazy so needless to say I got motion sick and puked all over. But the exhilaration was far more engrossing. Worth it!

To which countries have you traveled?

UK, Russia, Greece, Vietnam, United States, Netherlands

Describe one of your favorite vacations to another country:

During my visit to UK in 2016, I was lucky to time it with the concert of Hans Zimmer performing at Wembley Stadium in London. To say this was massive is to say nothing. The entire stadium was packed and the orchestra with choir was blasting sheer epicness from most renown movie soundtracks, leading to ultimate emotional catharsis. On a side note, I also remembered Buckingham palace, Big Ben, The tube, pubs, fish & chips and rubbish canisters.

Describe a few of your strong sides:

Flexible and adaptable worldview, i.e. not clinging too much to customs or traditions of the past;
Dedicated;
Forward thinking;
Outgoing

Describe a few of your weak sides:

Not too efficient at multitasking, tend to lose focus;
Somewhat sensitive to random acts of atrocities happening around from time to time;
Still can't give up sweets.

Personal characteristics

What is your native language?

Russian, Ukrainian

What other languages do you speak?

English, German, Spanish

Math Skills/Ability:

Calculus ready

Mechanical Skills:

Comfortable with fixing, assembling, advanced computer use skills

Athletic Skills:

Stamina, coordination, endurance, strength

What are your Hobbies/Interests/Talents:

I actively did skydiving, scoring 29 jumps total. As far as sport interests go, I currently love skiing (including cross country), snowboarding, biking, hiking, climbing and ping pong. Oh, and I also practice dancing. I love learning and reading about human anatomy/physiology as well as keeping in touch with overall medical and scientific advancements. Learning new skills and practicing new languages is something I thoroughly enjoy. I love sci-fi, horror and fantasy movies, occasionally playing video games. Favorite music genres are Orchestral epic music, rock, trance, house, EDM. I'm a quick learner. Neural plasticity and inherent flexibility are key to staying current. I'm convinced that a truly educated person is the one, who considers his education unfinished. My talents include sneezing at the sun, sleeping with the

Describe your artistic ability:

As far as drawing, I'm at the level of cube or dodecahedron at the most. If I get too inspired, maybe I'll conjure up a tesseract (don't worry, it's just a 3D projection of a 4D figure, I won't break laws of physics for now). In my dance class, I recently learned how to do some ballet moves like rond de jambe on a cringe meter that approaches bearable.

I'll throw in some medium singing skills mostly limited to karaoke. Do you like animals? If so, which is your favorite? I've been a critter lover since early childhood. Apart from dogs, cats, fish, through my life I housed a hedgehog, snakes, a praying mantis, hamsters, lizards. Recently I became fascinated by tarantulas and currently have one.

Personal characteristics

To where would you like to travel and why?

South America countries: Brazil, Peru, Argentina; Japan; Australia; European countries. To pick the first one, it's definitely Japan just because it's culture is so vibrant and uniquely formed compared to other countries that as such, it had huge influence on the global cultural landscape overall.

How would you describe your personality?

Highly outgoing, communicative and positive. Sense of humor is a powerful trait that is inherent to every optimist out there.

What is your ultimate ambition or goal in life and how do you see yourself in twenty years?

It is hard to predict given the ever accelerating pace of innovation and adaptation required thereof. As of now, I see myself as a successful entrepreneur and an MD.

Donor essay

Why do you want to be a donor?

To contribute to happiness and well-being of families longing to have healthy and bright children. My commitment pales in comparison to the realization that even if only a single baby gets born with my help, it will represent an entirely new genealogical bloodline that at some point in the future may play a decisive role in the survival of our species. Such perspective is hard to underestimate.

Describe your relationship with your family. How has your family shaped your values and who you are today?

I was brought up in a loving and loosely strict fashion. Ukraine of that period was struggling economically so the standards of living were much lower than in Western countries. Which is why, resourcefulness was a highly popular trait. The only mode of digital entertainment I had, was watching Duck Tales on weekends. So my childhood was spent outside kicking the ball or venturing out of the neighborhood to untouched open meadows where I was catching bugs and lizards.

And the ultimate rush was getting together with friends to explore some abandoned buildings and even sneak into a marine military base to scavenge berthed rusty ships.

On this premise, the most beneficial contribution to my identity was loose control from my mom, who did not impose any preconceived notions or views on me. Luckily, I was motivated enough on my own at school that she never needed to force me to study. So I can comfortably say that my worldview was on the most part formed by my own decisions and interactions. That made it so much easier to accept other cultural values and scrutinize your own mentality shortcomings.

What are you most proud of and why?

I take pride in completing 2 university degrees (one of them with excellence) and actually using that knowledge to achieve financial independence early. And my daughter, of course. This beautiful being was manufactured with unparalleled standards and care.
