Meeting the donor

our impression

With his 182 cm height, exuberant energy, eloquent speech, and very proper manner, Farum greets us with an sincerity that is unmistakable.

He always asks how we are doing and often follows up with questions about our answers. Farum is a man who wants to experience the world, to see the world as it is and in its surroundings. Farum is very active, and it is not uncommon for him to show up in full workout gear. In addition, he is also very musical and plays several different instruments.

Farum is a truly loving person, and creating memories with his family is one of the things he values most. Farum grew up in a family where togetherness was the most important thing. Being a child who was encouraged to explore and experience new things has given him the foundation he uses in his own life today. In addition to loving being around and talking to people, Farum also loves his own company.

Reading or cycling out in nature, alone with his thoughts, gives him the freedom and peace he grew up with and has carried with him into his adult life.

Donor essay

Why do you want to be a donor?

Several people in my life really struggled to have children, and I think that people who really want to do so should have nothing standing in their way and I have the power to help.

Describe your relationship with your family. How has your family shaped your values and who you are today?

I am blessed with a massive extended family that lives close to me, and we are very tight.

What makes you unique?

I can kind of do everything. I'm a proud nerd, I'm a successful athlete on a college sports team. I'm a qualified musician - but I'm quite good at many random (and occasionally useful) things

What are you most proud of and why?

I'm most proud of how I make friends with many different groups. In gymnasium, I was part of many drastically different friend groups, and I loved it. This still feels true in University, but sadly I can't be friends with everyone.
